Moderato With emotion

Once in a while I am just human, With a heart that throbs and aches! Once in a while I meet a true man, Who lives for honor's sake! Once in a while I seem to remember, Things said to me at tryst;

Once in a while in sweet September, Once in a while, a while.
Once in a while, his
dear eyes shining, In to my own as bright as stars;

Once in a while, "For you I am pining For you I'd go to war.” Once in a while he’ll say, “I love you.”

Whispering low at the close of day, Once in a while, I hope it’s true, dear, Once in a while, a while.

Try this on your Piano.
To Mr. and Mrs. James A. Dorsey.

Moderately slow with tenderness

Close your eyes my little baby, Close your eyes and go to sleep,
Now the scene has changed and he is gone, Out in the world some
