I lost the dear-est pal, I lost the sweet-est gal, All in one day, All in one Each night you come to me, Your vis-ion fair I see, All in my dreams, All in my day; We plann'd our hon-ey-moon, When the first rose was in bloom, That was the dreams; With your sweet an-gel charms, I hold you in my arms, Those are my day, That was the day, The sum-mer days have fled, and the dreams, Those are my dreams, When I a-wake each morn', I'm ros-es all are dead, The sun has ceased to shine, All in one day; sad and all for-lorn, I find my-self a-lone, with on-ly dreams;

rall. e dim.

Chorus.

When the last rose of sum-mer was in bloom, — And the air fill'd with frag-rance and perfume, — It was in the ear-ly spring, when the birds be-gin to sing, The soft breeze seemed to sigh, hon-ey-moon for you and I, my dar-ling Ding, Dong, rall.

the church-bells ring-ing, You were bride and I the hap-py groom, — But we

p

part-ed sad to say, Just be-fore our wed-ding day, When the last rose of sum-mer was in bloom. —

Gentlemen:-

I have sung hundreds of ballads by the best of writers both classics and popular but can truthfully state without fear of contradiction that "WHEN THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER WAS IN BLOOM" has created more favorable comment among managers of theatres, newspapers and the public in general than any song I have ever had in my repertoire.

I thank you heartily for so beautiful a ballad.

Sincerely Harry Ellis
