The citizens of ten states—organized to cooperate with and assist existing patriotic groups

United States Senator James O. Eastland of Mississippi has advised the Southern states to protect the right of peaceful assembly by passing laws that will make it difficult for persons to disseminate vicious propaganda against the South and its institutions.

In this month's propaganda campaign, the United States Senate learned that the South is not the only state in the Union that has the right to preserve its institutions and way of life. The southern states, according to Eastland, have the right to protect their way of life against the spread of propaganda and other activities that seek to undermine their way of life.

National Association for the Advancement of Colored People

The NAACP—founded in 1909—has been at the forefront of the struggle for civil rights in the United States. The organization has been involved in numerous legal battles, including the landmark case of Brown v. Board of Education (1954), which declared segregation in public schools unconstitutional.

The NAACP continues to work towards achieving equality and justice for all Americans, regardless of race, gender, or sexual orientation. The organization's ongoing fight against discrimination and inequality has made it a powerful force in the fight for civil rights.

American Legion

The American Legion is a patriotic, war veterans' organization that was founded in 1919. It was formed to continue the ideals of the American Doughboys who fought in the Great War (World War I).

The American Legion's mission is to honor all those who served in the United States military and to promote patriotism, courage, and a sense of sacrifice and service.
