James Meredith:

If you are a Christian or even a man, you wouldn't want to be somewhere you are not wanted. All the blood shed and trouble that has happened in Mississippi will be laid at your door and Mr. King's. God never intended for white and black to mix and intermarry. My husband and I both were ministers and he has gone home to glory now; but he would not have caused another trouble or heartache like you are doing. Or he would not have wanted to go somewhere where he was not wanted. I hope you can sleep and may God forgive you for the death and destruction you have caused. Think about it and may you ask God what is the right thing to do. If it was your own school you were trying to get in, I would say you were right but not some school where you don't belong, you'll be praying for you so you will come to your senses before it is too late.

Yours in Christ.
