Dear Friend,

for that is what you are to me. Because you show hope for righteousness, forbearance in fulfilling it. This is just a short note to wish you well in your continued struggle and difficult but great task you have undertaken. You will most likely realize I feel strengthened by a strong faith in the human power even if we are alone - fighting against storms of conservative and, alas, still so influential groups. But it is worth while what you are doing! And good things in our choice will have generally been started by single individuals, later on followed by others. May your example help others, your perhaps still doubtful to join in this field!

I admire your courage and send you my warmest and best wishes from afar!
