Ole Miss Motel

Oxford, Miss., Sept. 22--University of Mississippi Chancellor John D. Williams looked fresh and cheerful, like a man who had had a good night's sleep, when he met me in his office Saturday morning.

It was almost as if he had no part in the turbulent political drama that has made Ole Miss the pawn in what promises to be a fight to the finish between segregationist Governor Ross

Yet Williams is one of the most harried men at the center of the storm that has blown up over efforts of James H.
Meredith, a 29-year-old Negro, to enroll at the university.
